

THOMSON REUTERS

2020 SUMMER EXTERNSHIP OPPORTUNITY IN INTERNATIONAL MEDIA LAW

Reuters is looking for a first or second year law student to work as a for-credit extern in the summer of 2020. This opportunity is based in New York City.

Reuters is world's leading international news agency, reaching more than one billion people every day. We deliver real-time, award-winning news coverage to financial customers, news and media publishers and broadcasters, brands and consumers. Reuters covers a broad range of topics, including business, finance, politics, sports and technology. The hallmarks of Reuters' journalism are speed, impartiality and insight.

This externship offers a unique opportunity for a law student to gain practical experience in international media law. The student will learn about Reuters' B2B and B2C business models, while deepening their understanding of laws affecting newsgathering, publication, and copyright.

Interested students should email a cover note and resume to Kelly Mickelson, Director of Legal Operations, at kelly.mickelson@thomsonreuters.com, indicating their experience and interest. They should also provide information on the specific time period that they are available (between May and August 2020). Students should also confirm that their law school has an established program that provides academic credit for externships.

For more information, visit www.reuters.com, www.reutersagency.com, and www.thomsonreuters.com.